Can I add custom fonts to my site?

The font selection we have represents a complete list of browser safe fonts; this means that the fonts in our Font menu will work consistently in whatever browser your visitor uses. To apply a new font, select the Font menu and choose the font type you would like.

Unfortunately, there are only some fonts that work in all browsers. If we added any more fonts you would run the risk of not having your text display correctly for some of your visitors, which is why we have not added any of these fonts.

You could add custom fonts from an external source by copying and pasting or editing the HTML code of your text. However, you should be aware of the following dangers:

1. Copying and pasting could introduce formatting that is not web-friendly and this would cause your site not to load, so we don't recommend it.
2. Your site will not display consistently in all browsers. The only safe way to introduce custom fonts on your page is to upload them as image files. You can do this if you have access to any image editing tools such as Photoshop.
